

From Tampa, Fla., Walter Verhale sends me a newspaper clip credited to the New York Times, adding this footnote: "I subscribe to this system — do you?" Here's the clip:

"The best way to get real enjoyment out of a garden is to put on a wide straw hat, dress in thin, loose-fitting clothes, hold a trowel in one hand and a cool drink in the other, and tell the man where to dig."

"I mow the yard — that's all. Looking back at ancient history, and comparing notes with Charley Sprague, Roy Anderson and others who like myself spent some early years on the farm, I find that those who used their youth doing gardening don't usually work at it in adult life."

From the Waldorf-Astoria, New York, where he is attending the American Newspaper Publishers association and Associated Press conventions my partner, C. E. Palmer, airmails me a copy of the April Edition of the London (England) Times, April 27.

This world-famous paper, founded 160 years ago, comes out today in a 10-page edition. Unlike our American papers, its front pages are a solid mass of classified advertising, public notices, birth announcements, and so forth. Page 2 is the sports section — and the "front page" news appears on page 4. On this page you meet a two-column black headline: "Mr. Attlee's Statement on Yangtze Attacks" — being the top story of the day.

The single-line headlines which appear over most of the stories are reminiscent of the Kansas City Star, in our own country. And formerly many U. S. papers followed the English system of putting advertisements on the front page and starting the top news on an inside page. The Winkler-Barre (Pa.) Record, on which I served as a young reporter, "sold" the front page until nearly 1930. Today, of course, the American press uniformly restricts Page One to news.

But this London Times is a newspaper, and don't forget it. Many thousands of suigs are packed into its 10 pages — news of Britain, the Empire, U. S. A., and the world, all printed on a brilliantly white paper as light as tissue. This air-canon dated London April 27, was flown to New York by Mr. Palmer under date of April 29 and read on the Hope Saturday night the 30th. From London to Hope in three days is traveling fast — for a newspaper!

You who have followed occasional items in this column about the growth of the Southern pine pulp print industry, beginning with our account of a test run by nine Georgia dailies on the late Dr. C. H. Herty's paper pulp product in 1933, may be interested in some light on the pine newsprint mill which Lufkin, Tex., is now building.

Lufkin, Tex., is now building a Southern Pine Pulp Mill, Lufkin, is still the first and only mill making newsprint from Southern pine (formerly newsprint was a monopoly of the spruce mill in the Great Lakes States, Canada, Norway, Sweden, Finland and Russia). The Lufkin plant cost 20 million dollars. It has a capacity of 100,000 tons a year, the output being worth $30,000,000 a year. It employs 670 persons directly, but affords a cash income to hundreds more — farmers who supply it with cordwood from miles around. The mill takes 600 cords a day, and keeps a stockpile of 6,000 cords in the yards.

Balance of SPG Land to Be Sold

Jerome Smith, manager of the local surplus Property Disposal office here, said today that the balance of land in the Southwestern Proving Ground is now being appraised and the 4,901 acres will be offered for sale as soon as possible.

This will completely dispose of land in the area with the exception of some 1,900 acres fenced in by the government as unsafe for civilian use. The original tract contained some 33,000 acres all of which had been sold to former owners, veterans on a priority basis.

The 4,901 acres lie south of the Washington-East road and extend to the industrial area.

Minor Accident

An automobile driven by Dave Stroud collided with another driven by Orville Mitchell on Main street Saturday and struck another vehicle. Sixteen Street. The third vehicle was owned by Cecil De Laney. Stroud was arrested by local police.

Shanghai Rail Cut; 8 Armies Said Wiped Out

Shanghai, May 2 (censored) — (AP) — Traffic was reported suspended today on the last railway escape from Communist-occupied Shanghai to South China.

Inside the city, the chaotic money market crashed at midday, after garrison headquarters outlawed free trading in evidence silver dollars on threat of death — obviously a measure of great desperation.

The Red radio last night said eight Chinese government armies were "wiped out" and parts of other armies "routed" in the Nanking-Shanghai-Hangchow area. (A Chinese army usually 20,000 men.) The Red broadcast's claim of a "great victory" was not confirmed by government sources.

The semi-official Chinese Central News agency said rail service had been suspended between Hangchow and Nanchang. Hangchow is a seaport, resort city and communications center 100 air miles southwest of Shanghai. Nanchang, capital of Kiangsi province, is about 280 miles farther southwest, almost midway between Shanghai and Canton, provisional nationalist capital on the south coast.

(This was the first indication that the Communist offensive might have penetrated so deeply into South China. Previous dispatches have indicated the main Red thrust was aimed at Hangchow.)

Central News, however, did not say what caused suspension of rail traffic between Hangchow and Nanchang or where Red troops if any — were operating along the line.

A Shanghai garrison communiqué said Nationalist forces still were holding Kunshan, 32 miles west of Shanghai, despite heavy Red artillery bombardment at the outskirts of the town.

A small Red force which reached the vicinity of Taijiang, a mile or so northeast to Kunshan, was eliminated by Nationalist troops, the garrison announced. These Reds might have been flank defenders of the Communist attack which attacked Kunshan. The garrison said their strength was only 20 and was "totally wiped out."

A traveler from Hangchow said today that city had been occupied by Nationalist militia. He said Communist troops were not in evidence but he had no idea where they had gone.

In Shanghai there was no undue amount of military activity and no sign of any impending Red attack. Within the city, troop movements were not especially evident. Hundreds of Chinese soldiers, however, boarded Chinese naval vessels, which steamed down the Whangpoo river toward the sea. One Shanghai resident drove 20 miles into the countryside Sunday and said he saw no evidence of Communists and heard no guns. He was permitted through the Shanghai defenses, which he described as extensive where he could see.

The Shanghai garrison's new money market decree prohibited trading in silver dollars except at the official rate of four million yuan to one silver dollar. The previous open rate had soared as high as nine million.

As word of the order spread through the city, the value of silver coins crashed. With it the value of foreign currencies crashed even harder. The U. S. dollar, which brought 9,500,000 yuan, fell to 5,500,000 in ten minutes.

During the welter of activity it became known that the official government central bank had moved its headquarters to Canton.

Boy Scout Exposition Here Tonight

Bill Wray, general chairman for the scout exposition, is well pleased with the outlook for a big show. For most of us this is our first opportunity to see so many scout skills, Mr. Wray said.

Through the fine cooperation of the exposition committees, scout leaders and friends of scouting the exhibit hall has taken on gay colorful decoration.

Everything is in readiness for the event. The exposition will open at 7 and run until 9 p.m.

Buy your tickets from a cub, scout, or air scout, today or just before your quarter tonight and get you ticket at the door.

Admission for adults 25 cents, children 9 cents.

McClelland Seeks Increase Funds for Flood Work

Washington, May 2 — (AP) — Senator McClelland of Arkansas is asking an increase in funds for flood control work in his state.

McClelland said he will ask that appropriations voted by the house for use during the next year be increased by $250,000 for completion of the entire levee program on the Arkansas river and $400,000 for other Arkansas projects.

Officer Suspects Murder in Death of Worker

Oseola, May 2 — (AP) — Sheriff William Berryman today investigated the death of Frankie Hernandez, 55, on the assumption that the farm laborer was murdered. The battered body of Hernandez was found near here yesterday. A Texan, he had lived in this area for the past two years. He worked on the Harold Ohlendorf plantation.

Failure Reason for Lifting Blockade

Washington, May 2 — (UP) — Government foreign affairs experts expressed the belief today that Russia was to call off the Berlin blockade merely because it is a failure and not because of any desire to promote peace.

They said the success of the air-lift and the west's counter-blockade has convinced the Soviets that their own blockade is costing them more than it's worth.

These experts, whose job is to analyze Moscow's confusing diplomatic strategy, warned that the lifting of the blockade "would not mean that the Kremlin wants peace."

"The Russians are realists," said one official. "They will discard any plan that is not successful. But in the act of discarding it, they will attempt to gain political advantage."

He pointed out that Russian propaganda, beamed to Germany, now is stressing that the Soviet Union is willing to end the blockade to prevent a war which "aggressive western circles" are plotting.

This week may show if Russia and the Western powers can get together on a formula for ending the blockade. U. S. Ambassador to Moscow Philip C. Jessup and Soviet Envoy Jacob Malik are expected to resume their discussions.

However, there was some question in diplomatic circles as to just how much further the two could go by themselves.

The local next step, most officials agreed, would be a meeting of representatives of the United States, Britain, France and Russia to lay out a timetable for lifting the blockade and to fix a definite date for four-power talks on German questions.

Secretary of state Dean Acheson may hold a strategy session during the day with Jessup and other top department officials. The state department has imposed strict secrecy on the U. S.-Soviet discussions.

Department analysis indicates the "peace" move in Berlin is closely linked with the recent shakeup of the Soviet government, in which V. M. Molotov and other political members were relieved of administrative posts.

Credence is given here to reports that Molotov and the others involved have been promoted to a sort of Soviet super-planning staff devoted to conducting the struggle against capitalism on a worldwide basis.

Wants China to Also Get U. S. Arms

Washington, May 2 — (UP) — Sen. Pat McCarran (D-Nev.) urged today that the proposed arms-for-food program be extended to China to protect America's "back door" from Communist onslaughts.

By restricting the bulk of the arms shipments to Atlantic Pact nations, he said, the United States could be leaving the way open for Communists to take over Japan and the Philippines.

McCarran made his statement as former Undersecretary of State Robert A. Lovett was called before the senate foreign relations committee to testify on the Atlantic Pact and the controversial arms program. At the same time, McCarran's joint congressional "watch-dog" committee on foreign aid was to hear from Maj. Gen. Claire Chennault whose "Flying Tigers" won a brilliant chapter in the Far East Phase of World War II.

McCarran said he will support both the Atlantic Treaty and the projected billion-dollar plan to arm the free nations abroad.

"But I'm at a loss," he said, "to understand in connection with this new security program for Europe why we let the march of communism go on at our doorstep in Asia. We spend billions in Europe and refuse to send a reasonable sum against the greatest march the Communists have ever made — in China."

If Communist control is extended through South China, McCarran said, "I don't see how we can hold the Philippines and Japan."

They'll infiltrate into the Philippines and with a big percentage of Communists in Japanese trade unions they'll have no trouble in taking control there."

The decision of McCarran and Sen. William F. Knowland (R-Cal.) to push the China question simultaneously with the Atlantic Pact indicated that President Truman was not completely successful in his efforts to stem congressional criticism of administration policy in the Far East.

The president and Secretary of State Dean Acheson talked at the White House last week with Republican Sens. Kenneth S. Wherry, Neel, and Styles Bridges, N. H. It was understood that the senators — both critics of U. S. policy in China — received an elaboration on Acheson's recent warning that further U. S. military aid to China would be "catastrophic" and would require U. S. troops in combat action to be successful.

More Rainfall in Hempstead Over Weekend

More rain fell in Hempstead over the weekend adding to already swollen streams and keeping farmers from planting and getting land ready to plant. The Experiment station reported a total of 1.89 inches of rain over the weekend. Yesterday's high temperature was 75 and low 56 degrees.

CBAA, Watchdog of Womanly Bulge, Has Come Up With Some Well-Rounded Figures

By HAL BOYLE

New York (AP) — It takes a lot of figuring to keep the female figure in bounds.

And that watchdog of the womanly bulge, the Corset and Brassiere Association of America, has come up with a few well-rounded statistics.

It has found that no one shape seems to satisfy the girls for long. The only thing about the female contour that has remained unchanged since Cleopatra's is the shoulder. (Eds. note: It is as cold as ever.)

Researchers of the CBAA have discovered the American woman of today is no longer the wasp-waisted stringbean of yore. She's more willowy than willow.

Put in terms of a mathematical formula, the average woman now is 5 feet 3 inches tall and weighs 133 pounds. She has a 35½ inch bust, 23-inch waist and 33-inch hips.

At least these are the typical measurements of the women who buy foundation garments. And 37 per cent of those over 15 years of age do.

The farmer's daughter is shorter and wider at the beam than her city sister. And the rich girl has a seawarmer chassis than the working lass.

One survey showed that only about one out of 13 women has the classic measurement — "perfect 36."

Perhaps this helps explain the contention that 55,000,000 American women figure they have a figure problem — and do something about it.

This idea has grown with the ages. Now some 300 American firms, employing more than 17,000 persons, each year turn out 100,000 brassieres, 1,000,000 "falsies" or bust pads, and 41,000,000 girdles and corsets.

The girdle, incidentally, was invented by a man — probably the caveman. He wore a gaudy belt of fur to hold his hunting weapons.

Men also have been about as stoutly devoted to corsets as the ladies. The first known use of the term "corset" is in the household register of Eleanor, countess of Leicester, in May 24, 1265. The corsets were made for Richard, king of the Normans, and his son Edward.

In the days of England's good Queen Bess a 13-inch waist was in high style, and the only comfortable ladies were female midgets. At the court of Elizabeth De Medici women achieved this degree of compression by wearing corsets made of thin steel plates.

A girl who ate an extra olive at dinner while dressed in this contraption ran the risk of springing her lingers.

This fashion became such a rage on the continent that in 1559 Emperor Joseph of Austria issued an edict forbidding the use of corsets in dressing rooms and places where young girls were educated. This had about the effect you'd expect. The girls simply laced their boot-leg corsets tighter.

In the 18th century European families of quality even began dressing their children in corsets. They were supposed to help young boys gain a military bearing. One can only wonder how many more battles Gen. U. S. Grant might have won in a corset with a two-day stretch.

Today the industry's best customer is the best-dressed girl in the world — the American working girl. She buys four brassieres and two girdles a year.

Young FDR in Home Stretch of Campaign

New York, May 2 — (UP) — Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., a tall, square-jawed, personable young man who has dedicated himself to "the welfare of the people," was in the homestretch today in his campaign to go to Washington as a congressman.

Two weeks from tomorrow voters in New York's 20th congressional district will choose a successor to the late Rep. Sol Bloom, D. Young Roosevelt could hardly have found a more limelighted stage on which to launch a political career which may make him the first of his generation of Roosevelts to hold public office.

Nationally-known citizens are in the fight for and against him, and in the background is Tammany Hall, which has shown the same coolness to young Roosevelt as it did in the early New Deal days to his father, the late President Roosevelt.

Tammany is having a $50-a-plate dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel tonight and there is every indication it will be snubbed by Mayor William O'Dwyer. Instead, he will address a meeting of the fair deal democrats, an insurgent, anti-Tammany organization which is supporting Roosevelt.

Rejected by Tammany, young Roosevelt became the nominee of the Liberal party and of the independent Four Freedoms party.

"I consider myself in this campaign to be committed to one overriding principle, the welfare of the people in the city and, indeed, the nation," he said.

Roosevelt, 34, is aspiring higher in his first candidacy than his father did 40 years ago when he lost to the New York state senate from Dutchess county. Win or lose, he apparently intends to stay in the field he has chosen. To an interviewer the other day he said: "Politics is in my blood."

Double Murder, Suicide at Texarkana

Texarkana, Tex., May 2 — (AP) — Double murder and suicide was the verdict of Coroner R. L. Burns in the death of an 80-year-old man, his wife and their son.

Burns said Ben Read shot his wife, Etta, 76, and their son, W. R. Read, 33, and then turned the shotgun on himself.

Sheriff E. G. Henslee said the triple shooting apparently occurred Saturday night.

Yesterday Read was found slumped on the front steps of his home, the shotgun between his knees. His wife and son were lying in the yard.

Burns said Mrs. Read's right shoulder was shot away, young Read was shot in the chest and the older man was hit in the head.

Five Persons Die Violently in Arkansas

By the associated press

At least five persons died violently in Arkansas over the weekend. Automobile accidents caused three deaths.

J. B. Goss, 32, of Mena, died in an automobile-truck collision on Highway 71 near Huntington Sunday. His wife and their two children were injured.

A similar mishap near Conway Saturday brought death to Pat Smith, 18, of Vilonia. Six others were hurt.

A pedestrian, Jim Harvill, 42, died at Russellville Saturday after being struck down by an automobile.

A. D. Weems, Monette, died in a Jonesboro, Ark., hospital Saturday a few hours after he suffered burn in his home.

The body of Frankie Hernandez, 55 years old, was found near his home in Oseola, Ark. Sunday. Authorities said he apparently "was murdered."

Change to Be Licked in Education Bill

Washington, May 2 — (AP) — Three sponsors of legislation to grant the states $300,000,000 annually for school education predicted today the senate will turn down any major change.

But the forecast — by Senators Jeff (R-Ohio), Elbert Thomas (D-Utah) and Aiken (S-Car.) — was challenged by supporters of the amendment by Senator Lodge (R-Mass.).

As the senate made ready to resume debate on the education measure house leaders representing opposing camps scurried around for labor legislation votes.

The hot wrangle over the labor bills, quieted by a week-end truce, gets started again tomorrow in the house and might reach a showdown Tuesday.

In the senate, foes of the $300,000,000 education bill don't expect to muster enough votes to defeat the measure. But they are hopeful the aid distribution formula will be revised.

As drafted, the bill calls for grants to states on the basis of (1) the number of school children 5 to 17 years old in a state, and (2) the annual income payments in each state.

The Lodge amendment calls for distributing the federal funds on the basis of $10 for each public school child. Lodge has labelled "ridiculous" the plan for tying into account the annual income payments in each state. He says it is no accurate yardstick of state wealth.

Under the formula now in the bill the poorer states, as measured by that criterion, would get the biggest grants. They would range from $5 a child to slightly above $29.

Taft told reporters he expects the Lodge amendment to be defeated "without any trouble at all." He said the proposal would "defeat the whole purpose of the bill, which is to equalize educational opportunities in the various states."

Aiken said he looks for a big majority of the senate to insist on the equalization distribution plan. Like Taft, Thomas said the Lodge amendment "contrasts to the whole philosophy of the bill."

Wave of Strikes Break Out Over Nation

By the Associated Press

About 6,500 Philco corporation workers in the Philadelphia area struck today for higher wages. About 7,000 Singer Sewing machine workers went on strike at Elizabeth, N. J.

Other strikes crippled public transportation in Atlanta: kept 2,000 workers idle in four New Jersey industries; and shut down the Bendix Aviation corporation products plant at South Bend, Ind., for the 13th day.

In the soft coal industry, under the Taft-Hartley act, striking in day for John L. Lewis to give the 60 day notice if he intends to end his United Mine Workers contract.

The Philadelphia Philco workers, through the CIO United Electrical Workers union, are asking for a 15 cents an hour wage increase and a pension plan. A contract expires Saturday. Philco makes radios, television sets and refrigerators.

The General Electric Company, traditional wage policy setter in its field, said in New York that it will oppose an increase in wages and other benefits for electrical industry workers.

Blockade Lifting Date to Be Set This Week

New York, May 2 — (AP) — A date for lifting of the Russian blockade of Berlin may be set this week.

The climactic session in the slow and careful negotiations to end the blockade is expected to conclude soon as one of the parties tells the other "let's meet." That presumably will happen this week in New York.

Present prospects are that this week may reach agreement on ending the Russian blockade and the Allies counter-blockade, and setting a date for a meeting of the big four foreign ministers on a German question.

Both the Americans and Russians involved in the negotiations thus far have maintained strictest secrecy about their progress. The outline of the situation has become only slightly less hazy since news of the first sessions was announced by Tass, the official Soviet news agency.

Dr. Philip C. Jessup, U. S. ambassador at large, said after his last mtg with Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Jacob Malik the talks "were proceeding satisfactorily."

The London Daily Herald, organ of Britain's ruling Labor party, said today Malik suggested that the blockades be lifted at the end of the first week in June. The story credited to the newspaper's London diplomatic correspondent, gave no source for its information.

One of the apparent reasons for the length of the negotiations is a reported desire by U. S. officials to be absolutely certain the Russian offer to lift the blockade has no strings attached other than those made public by Tass.

That offer was to lift the blockade if the Western powers would give up their counter-blockade and set a date acceptable to the Soviets for a big four meeting on Germany.

If a big four meeting is arranged it probably will be held in Paris sometime in May or June. The meeting would include the U. S., Britain, France and Russia. While, when Britain and France may be expected to join the New York talks, Jessup has been keeping representatives of both nations informed of his talks with Malik.

Children are naturally curious...

Children love to play "grown-up" and do the things they see their parents do. Naturally they are curious about the telephone because it is so much a part of the adult life they see every day.

It's good for children to learn how to use the telephone. Of course, it takes time and patience to teach them... but you recognize how important it is just as we do.

It's when children play with the telephone that they make trouble. If they leave the receiver off the hook, not only your telephone—but also the others on the line—are completely shut off. People will be unable to reach any of you and you may miss important calls. Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.

Beta Sigma Phi Celebrates Birthday

The Epsilon Sigma, Epsilon Rho, and Xi Iota Exemplar chapter of Beta Sigma Phi International Sorority were hostesses at a formal Founder's Day Banquet Saturday evening at seven o'clock. The banquet was held in the private dining room of the Hotel McCarty in Texarkana, celebrating the sorority's 18th birthday. The theme of the program was "Blossomtime." The U-shaped table held lovely arrangements of spring flowers and yellow tapers in crystal candelabra. The speakers table was centered with an oblong arrangement of varied colored snapdragons and a miniature umbrella decorated in purple and white and purple satin bows.

Toastmistress, Miss Teresa Fumagalli presided over the banquet. The program was as follows: Welcome to Guests was given by Miss Fumagalli. Mrs. E. F. Fomby, director of the Alpha Zeta Chapter of Hope, gave the response to the Welcome. Mrs. Inez Staats, president of the Hope chapter introduced the members from Hope. The Pondering Day message from Walter W. Ross, was read by Miss Doris Timmerlake, Virginia Ebert, Elma Rutledge and Mary Leigh Moores gave interesting talks on "A Panorama of Gardens."

The highlight of the banquet was the presentation of award to the member chosen as the Outstanding Beta Sigma Phi of the year. The winner of this award was Miss Teresa Fumagalli.

As guest speaker for the occasion Mrs. Hays McClerkin of Texarkana gave a most inspiring talk. The meeting was then closed with the closing ritual.

Approximately 100 members attended the banquet. Among the Hope members attending were: Mrs. E. F. Fomby, Mrs. Inez Staats, Misses Mary Cox, Betty Martin, Modelle Looney, Shirley Ebert, Betty Biele, Wanda Huggles, and Mary Ethel Perkins.

Mrs. H. C. Whitworth Entertains With Luncheon

Mrs. H. C. Whitworth entertained with a luncheon at 12:30 p.m. Friday at the Barlow Hotel, for members of the Friday Bridge club and her out of town guests.

The long table was centered with a footed glass bowl holding red Radiance roses. Place cards marked places for the following: Mrs. R. D. Franklin, Mrs. R. V. Herndon, Sr., Mrs. C. C. Lewis, Mrs. A. J. Neighbors, Mrs. E. P. Stewart, Mrs. M. M. McCloyhagan, Mrs. Thomas Kinser, Mrs. Sid Gordon, Mrs. C. W. Cromley, Mrs. Sam Hammer, Mrs. E. W. Stanley and the hostess.

After the luncheon, the members went to the Whitworth home for bridge. Arrangements of spring flowers were used throughout the house. Bridge was played from three tables with high-score going to Mrs. C. C. Lewis, Mrs. Sid Gordon and Mrs. Thomas Kinser.

New Hearing Device Has No Receiver Button in Ear

Chicago, Ill.—Deafened people are hailing a new device that gives them clear hearing without making them wear a receiver button in the ear. They now enjoy songs, sermons, friendly companionship and business success with no self-conscious feeling that people are looking at any button hanging on their ear. With the new invisible Phantomoid, you may free yourself not only from deafness, but from even the appearance of deafness. The makers of Bellone, Dept. 40, 1450 W. 19th St., Chicago 8, Ill., are so proud of their achievement they will gladly send you their free brochure on plain wrapper and explain how you can test this amazing invisible device in the privacy of your own home without asking a penny. ISLAND OF ESCAPE

By Hugh Lawrence Nelson

COPYRIGHT BY HUGH LAWRENCE NELSON. DISTRIBUTED BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

Four days out of San Francisco, the 65-foot Simpatico, converted tuna-fish boat, once a minelayer, raised Speare Island. Beas Cosgrove left the grease-smelling alcove where her three women companions still sat at table with the members of the crew who passed as first mate and spoke only with gestures and smiles. As she walked forward she felt the pulse of the overtaxed Diesel slow. The bow dropped lower, pushed apologetically now through the swells.

She saw the captain in the tiny wheelhouse, pulling away a dead leaf from the potted plant he tended so carefully. He looked up and smiled at her, a flash of white teeth in his bearded face. The half door hid the cotton pants he usually wore, and the bare upper part of his body was incredibly hairy.

In the bow, the reduced speed had stopped any breeze. Beas pushed her dark hair from her eyes. Ahead was a small brown smudge.

"Speare Island. Beautiful, is it not?"

She turned to face Captain Oak. He stood beside her on splayed bare feet. The hair on top of his shoulders had turned up in tufts. He looked at her a moment, then turned and pointed ahead again. "Your future home. Home, Sweet Home."

"So you do speak English? I thought you couldn't be as dumb as you pretended," Beas said.

"You are provoked with me. That is all right. I, Miguel Cervantes Vanessi Oak, say it is all right. But this thing you are going to do, that is not all right."

"I don't know what you're talking about," she said.

Captain Miguel Oak shrugged his massive shoulders. "Those other three in the mess hall. Of them I laugh. I do not care what they do. It is fine if they go to Speare Island. For you, for one so beautiful, with a figure like . . . he gestured. He repeated, "It is not good. For those others, maybe there is no other choice."

Miss Cosgrove's gray eyes could take on a greenish shade at times. She said, "I'm 40. I've taught school 20 years. I . . ."

He interrupted. "I do not care about your past. Even if I believe the words you say."

"And you have something to suggest?"

"You laugh at me. But never mind. I do have something to suggest. Go back with me on the Simpatico. Do not stay on the island."

She stared at him. His slit eyes were liquid brown. And if I stay with the other three?"

He shrugged. "I suppose," Beas said, "I should be complimented. You break your four-day silence, and make proposals. But the answer is no. 'Promises?' Oak's bearded face was creased in bewilderment. He laughed suddenly. "Ah, senorita, you thought I spoke of love? Of love between us, eh? What have you, Arkadelphia, and will be in charge of the stunts, given Reddie day, Wednesday, May 4."

The following Hope students participated in the May Day pageant given at the State A & M College, Magnolia, Sunday afternoon: Denzil Ross, Howard Stone and Mrs. Thomas Berry. Miss Carolyn Boswell of Bodcaw was crowned queen, and Denzil Ross, king of the May Day festival.

Miss Evelyn Allbright of Hope, will be among the 19 graduate nurses to be graduated by St. Vincent's School of Nursing at 8 p.m. Tuesday in Little Rock.

and I do with love?" He waited for an answer, went on at last. "It is not the time, now. But there is something else of which we know. Something stronger maybe."

"Stronger? What do you mean?"

"Hate, senorita. Hate."

Bea looked at the island, closer now, with individual features of cliffs and white foam line emerging. "I'm not going back," she said slowly.

"I did not think so. I can see things hidden to others. And I must warn." He reached in a pocket of his white pants and pulled out a tiny, nickel-plated revolver. He said, "You can use this, I think."

She took it, looked at it. "I wouldn't shoot that thing with a borrowed hand."

Oak said, "The things school teachers know! But you are right. It is a 'suicide gun.' But it will serve a purpose. It might be used to draw attention away from that so efficient automatic you carry in your girdle. You see, on the island, no firearms are allowed but his."

Bea partially checked her downward glance.

"It does not show," Oak said. "Unless one has an eye for such matters."

"Thanks. I'll take it, put it in my bag. And I suppose I'd better go put the few things I have together."

"There is plenty of time. We must wait outside for the right moment. It is a bad landing."

Bea smiled. "I'll take care of myself." She reached out and touched his shoulder. The tufts of hair were springy under her palm. She jerked her hand away.

Miguel Oak said, "You were not built to hold so much hate."

It was late afternoon and four women were on the foredeck of the Simpatico when she entered the cove, hugging closely the overhang of a yellow, scarred, and black cliff. The wake pushed out and tossed the restless water against the green sea growth on tidal rock, retreated and left the long streamers brushed and dripping.

A group of men waited silently on one side of the small dock, while noisy sea birds littered the other. When the Simpatico slid closer Bea could see strands of barb wire which caged the men, lashed them off from the wide table where one man in spotless white sat waiting.

Miss Cosgrove and her three companions had identical overnight cases they had been given to "bring everything they wanted besides clothes" to Speare Island. All four were dressed in their versions of suitable. Miss Cosgrove in a black suit skirt and coat with a loose white blouse, ankle socks and comfortable low black shoes. Mabel Jones' flowered print hung loosely and shapelessly from her sloping shoulders and left bare the lower part of her tanned, muscle-corded arms. In one work-hardened hand she carried a gray coat with noisy moth-eaten bits of collar fur. Lily Warren's shocking pink slacks were too tight across the seat. Her offshade red shoes were open-toed. Her hemmed hair fell below shoulder length to her well-filled green sweater. Agnes Firth's shoes were patched, turned over at the heels and neatly polished. Her service-weight hose were darned and she wore a nondescript gray suit as if it were an unpleasant chance of acquaintance.

As the Simpatico came in for a landing, hundreds of birds took the air, screaming their opinions. The group of men milled about, herded themselves toward the closed gate.

Bea Cosgrove could see the whites of her shudderingly emfwp flash of teeth. She heard them laugh. She looked around to see Lily Warren tucking the tight sweater into her slacks.

"You come too late," one man called.

Another said, "Mrs. valen cuatro pajaros en mano que ciento volande."

The Simpatico touched the dock. Her engines turned over slowly, holding her. Captain Oak called, "Step ashore! Step ashore! Quien anda al revea anda el camino dos veces."

The men laughed. The four women stepped ashore with their overnight cases. Their sea legs lent motion to the dock as they moved slowly toward the man in white.

A scuffling sound made Bea look back. The gate was open and the men pushed through. They ran the few steps, jumped to the Simpatico. Her engines reversed, swung her slowly, pitching and tossing in the rip and crosscurrents, then nosed her toward the entrance of the cove. The sea birds hovered uncertainly. Some skimmed low over the Simpatico's wake while the rest settled noisily to the dock.

Miss Cosgrove bumped into Agnes Firth, turned quickly and found herself at the table. She faced the man she had taught herself to hate. The reality instead of her previous nebulous and bloodless mental picture.

The man stood up. "I am Henry Gough Harding," he said. "If you ladies will open your bags for inspection and present your credentials?"

The opened cases were lined up on the table. Each of the women held out her letter on the embossed paper of the Lonely Hearts Matrimonial and Correspondence club.

Henry Harding took the letters glanced at them, looked up momentarily and then sat down as he said, "These are your passports to a better life on Speare Island."

CANCER CAN BE WHIPPED!

CANCER MUST BE WHIPPED!

In 1900, CANCER was regarded as incurable!

Today, CANCER is no longer regarded as incurable!

Your contributions of yesterdays have helped to cause this change, and to free millions of people from fear of this dread disease, but...

Complete Cancer Control Still Is Unforeseeable

Progress is being made! Lives are being saved! However, with reasonable precautions the fight to control cancer must be "stopped up" to salvage more lives from Cancer's deadly, hidden blow.

Your Purse Strings Control the Answer!

Loose: They will help speed the day of Cancer Control!

Tight: They will help Cancer continue its death harvest!

Open up your purse! GIVE! Your contribution can help save someone's life... maybe your own! Thanks for your help.

This intelligent and aggressive battle against cancer must be made continually stronger until Cancer is brought under control.

Gift Delights for Mother

by TEXTRON

Sunday, May 8th is Mother's Day . . . and by all means don't forget her on her Day. Here are a few TEXTRON gifts that will please any Mother. Charming gifts that you'll give her with pride. Choose her's now from our Mother's Day Collection of everything pretty. See these gifts by TEXTRON.

1 Wonderful to behold and to hold . . . this beautifully textured, TEXTRON nylon tricot slip as shown . . . so rapid drying and so immune to runs, shrinking or sagging. Tailored and lace trimmed styles to choose from in white or black.

2 This lovely TEXTRON gown of tricot nylon, touched with real nylon Val, washes easily . . . as it dries you can see it transform itself, as though by magic, back to the midriff gown you fell in love with. As shown in white, black, blush and powder blue. Sizes 32 to 42.

3 TEXTRON striped show-stopper as shown . . . cool, candy striped cotton confection, fresh and crisp. Gracious compliments . . . for the lacy white eyelet necklacing your throat . . . the perky half sash tied round your tiny waist . . . and the widely flounced skirt swishing enchantment at your feet. It never needs to be ironed. In Copen, Peppermint Red or Mint green striped with white.

4 Smooth, stream-lined chemise designed in a bras line . . . fitted in the midriff. Tailored in the precise manner with sweeping underarm freedom. Of sheerest nylon that won't shrink, sag or run . . . to tub in a jiffy and dry almost while you wait. In White and Blush.

5 Mother will appreciate these nylon panties by TEXTRON. Pretty lace trimmed and tailored styles in white, black, blue, and blush. Give her several of these for her gift from you.

Come in and let us show you the many pretty gifts that we have for any Mother. We are always glad to help you and you're sure of finding just the gift here that will please.
